Dear Sirs:

Chapman v. Jeffs

D. C.

We have been unable to get any satisfaction from Mr. Jeffs although we have made repeated demands for payment of this account. Our letters are not returned up to date and we assume that he must have received them. We are making enquiries as to his financial condition and so soon as we are in a position to do so will report to you and ask for instructions as to whether we are to take proceedings in Court against him. In the meantime we drop this line so that you may know we are not losing sight of the matter.

Yours truly,

Walter Cassels

Dear Sirs:-

Chapman v. Jeffs. D. C.

We are informed that this man is a Tea peddler, that he is considered reliable, and is said to have a little money. It is said that he has sold his house and is about to start a small store. We are informed that he should be good for a small amount. We have been unable to obtain any reply from him and we shall be obliged if you will let us have your instructions whether we are to place the claim in Court and endeavor to force him to pay.

Yours truly,

Blake, Lash & Cassels

Dear Sirs:--

Re Jeffs (D.C.)

Referring to your letter of the 21st instant, we regret to state that we have not been able to obtain anything further on the balance of your claim. We are pressing Jeffs, but so far without success. We are keeping track of the matter, and shall advise you of our success with as little delay as possible.

Yours truly,
